

322 - "LITTLE BUG HORN WELCOMING COMMITTEE"

Sitting Bull, in a vision, looked into the sky and saw soldiers falling like grasshoppers, with their heads down and their hats falling off. Because the white men had no ears and would not listen, the Great Spirit was giving these soldiers lives to the Indians.

On June 24, 1876, General Armstrong Custer and his 264 men met their fate at the junction of the Big Horn and Little Horn rivers.
