

JACKSON'S LEGACY

CHEROKEE ARTIST  RON MITCHELL

1829 Gold was discovered on Cherokee land in Georgia.

The following year the state of Georgia passed a law outlawing the Cherokees from mining the gold. This was the first of several laws that led to the "Trail of Tears"; enforced by Andrew Jackson.

100 years after the first law passed against the Cherokees, the First National Bank of Atlanta issued a twenty dollar bill honoring Andrew Jackson, (and his legacy, the "Trail of Tears").
