

" CHEROKEE BRAVES "

Stand Watie led his cavalry in constant raids against Union Forces during the Civil War. Despite all of their efforts of the vastly more numerous Union Forces they could never catch or defeat General Watie and his men and his harassment continued until the end of the war. Ultimately, Stand Watie fought on longer than any other Confederate general of the war. It was not until June 23, 1865 that he signed a cease-fire agreement with Union Forces at Fort Towson in the Choctaw area of Oklahoma, bringing his troops in to lay down their arms worn and weary but never defeated.
