

Ron Mitchell's CHEROKEE ARTIST NEWSLETTER

www.cherokeeartist.net

MARCH-APRIL, 2012

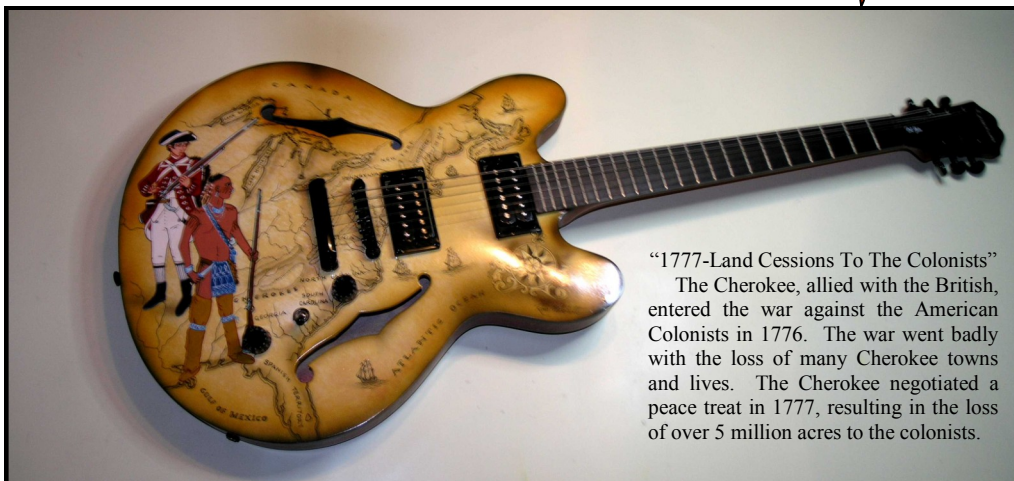

CLOSE CALL IN INDIAN COUNTRY

April 19, 2012 at 6:30 pm I had a major heart attack in my home in the Cherokee Nation. My cousin Jeff Hensley called 911 and I was airlifted to the Hillcrest Medical Center in Tulsa, Oklahoma. The quick response from my cousin, first responders and medical team saved my life. After landing at the Medical Center I was rushed in for an Angioplasty procedure and spent four days in recovery. I am now resting at home and will be restricted to limited activity for the next few months. I will be on a very limited show schedule for the rest of the year. My goal is to try and make the Red Earth show in Oklahoma City in June, with my son's help.

Ron Mitchell

GUITAR PAINTED FOR CHEROKEE'S HARD ROCK CASIO IN OWASSO, OKLAHOMA

"1777-Land Cessions To The Colonists"
The Cherokee, allied with the British, entered the war against the American Colonists in 1776. The war went badly with the loss of many Cherokee towns and lives. The Cherokee negotiated a peace treat in 1777, resulting in the loss of over 5 million acres to the colonists.

I was honored to be one of the select Cherokee Artist to custom paint a guitar for the new addition to the Cherokee Nation's Hard Rock Casio in Owasso, Oklahoma. My guitar will be on display in the new addition with the other guitars selected.

1. Take off hardware & sand.

2. Prime & paint base colors.

3. Layout design & paint.

4. Paint details & airbrush.

5. Finish with satin finish.

6. Letter story on back.

To remove your name from our mailing list, please click here
Questions or comments E-mail us or call 405-567-5566.